I am a young woman, a bilingual petroleum engineer, interested in having a better society, with clear personal values and above all understanding the importance of teamwork. With experience reporting development and project monitoring. I respect nature, ancestral knowledge, and wisdom. I thrust that as an industry we can have even more efficient processes and I am pleased that we can face great challenges, with global thoughts and processes, adapt to the global changes and dynamics, from where I can enhance myself as a professional and contribute to the goals that the world demands.

I am interested in academia, society, and nature, as well as for spirituality as humans being, respecting the freedoms of the other beings. Among my extracurricular activities, I highlight my participation in the Afro-Colombian dance group MACONDO-UIS, where I served as a dancer and founder member of the management committee of the group. Likewise, I highlight my academic exchange at the São Paulo University in Brazil by one year, where I started my undergraduate project in the research modality.

Part of my professional and personal training has been the opportunity to interact with different professionals from different disciplines. Assistance in laboratories, oil fields, and platforms, have given me a much more complete view of the energy industry.

My hobbies are to travel, to dance, to meet and to know new cultures, I like sport and spiritual practice, I am interested in the energy industry and also in university teaching because I believe that education is the way to change and to enhance the quality of life of the society.
